I had the service of two of our beat doctors and they could do nothing for her. At times it would take two persons to hold her in bed, and for seven days and nights we had to keep her little head packed in lee, the pain she suffered was so severe. Mr. Prentice, the druggist advised Dr. Miles' Nervine. I got a bottle and began giving a tenspoontile every two hours. After about ten days she began to quiet down, and within two weeks time she could sit up in bed, and rapidly improved from that time. We have given her about twenty-five bottles of Nervine along with the Nerve and Liver Pills, and to-day she is well and healthy as ever. CONSTANTINOPLE, May 12.-The Pourparlers, by which Japan is seeking to establish diplomatic relations with Turkey and the location of a Japanese ambassador at Constantinople, have en ambassador at Constantinople, have encountered a rather serious stumbling block. Japan wishes to be treated on the same footing as the great powers of Europe with respect to the "capitulations" by which Turkey gives foreign powers certain supervision over their internal affairs, including schools, missions, consular courts, etc. The Porte, is firmly opposel to granting these privileges to Japan, as all the efforts of Turkey within recent years have aimed at the restrictions, and ultimate abolition of these privileges to foreign powers.

have aimed at the restrictions, and utitimate abolition of these privileges to foreign powers.

The efforts of Japan to establish diplomatic relations with Turkey date back to the period preceding the Russo-Japanese War, and were renewed later at different intervals. In November, last year, a fresh attempt was made during the presence in Constantinople of two Japanese staff officers, who were occupied in a tour of study and in Turkey, one of whom subsequently proceeded to Bagdad. These officers were the bearers of a large number of Japanese decorations for Turkish officials. It is stated in official circles that the Pourparlers are still going on, although reticence is observed regarding the place where the negotiations are being conductd.
